PARIS FALLS TO CITIZENS AFTER FOUR DAYS OF STREET FIGHTING

THE GERMAN FORCES IN PARIS, IT WAS OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY, HAVE BEEN DEFEATED BY THE FRENCH FORCES OF THE INTERIOR, AFTER FOUR DAYS' FIGHTING, AND THE CAPITAL IS NOW UNDER FRENCH CONTROL AGAIN. THIS NEWS WAS GIVEN IN A SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE FROM THE HEADQUARTERS OF GENERAL KOENIG, COMMANDER OF THE F.F.I. IT DISCLOSED THAT A GENERAL INSURRECTION TOOK PLACE, COMMENCING LAST SATURDAY.

Market scene in Paris.

SEVERAL HUNDRED THOUSAND FRENCHMEN TOOK PART IN THE FIGHTING, AND, ACCORDING TO THE PRESS ASSOCIATION, THE GERMANS USED FIELD GUNS IN THE STREETS. THE FRENCH EVENTUALLY SUCCEEDED IN OCCUPYING ALL PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

General Eisenhower's forces are expected to enter Paris in a few hours, according to a Reuter correspondent at Allied Supreme Headquarters.

No statement about the loss of the capital has, so far been made by the Germans.

A C.B.S. front line report, received early this morning, stated that the French 2nd Armoured Division had entered Paris.

Last night Reuter reported that Versailles was invaded yesterday by members of the French Forces of the Interior.

Island as Fortress

The following special communiqué was issued from General Koenig's Headquarters in London:—

"On Saturday, August 19th, in the morning, the National Council of Resistance and the Paris Committee of Liberation, in agreement with the national delegate, a member and representative of the Provisional Government of the French Republic, ordered a general insurrection in Paris and the Parisian region.

"The French Forces of the Interior—50,000 strong, armed and supported by several hundred thousand unarmed patriots—went into action immediately.

"The French police, which was already on strike, took possession of the Police Prefecture, and turned the Ile de la Cité into a fortress, against which the German attacks broke.

"Yesterday, after four days' fighting, the enemy has been defeated everywhere.

"The patriots occupied all public buildings. Vichy representatives were arrested, or had fled.

"So the people of Paris played a major part in the liberation of their capital."

TROOPS NEAR

News was awaited last night of the entry of the Allied armies into Paris, states Reuter's Correspondent at Allied Headquarters. General Eisenhower's forces are closing in from all sides. They are expected to enter the city within a few hours.

Although Allied Supreme Headquarters has not so far commented on General Koenig's announcement, the position of any Germans in the capital has been made precarious by General Patton's outflanking thrusts.

Fighting between French patriots and German soldiers broke out in the streets of Paris on Friday, an official of the Fighting French Forces stated last night.

Shots were exchanged in the Boulevard Bonne Nouvelles, in the centre of Paris, and people were killed in the Rue Faubourg St. Denis.

In the Rue de Rivoli the Germans used small field-guns. Railwaymen prevented trains from moving by lying on the tracks.

The Provisional Government of France, in an appeal to the people of Paris to conserve food supplies, said that, while everything possible was being done to remedy the food situation, several days must elapse before transport could be reorganised and effective help arrive. An equitable distribution was assured.

Marseilles Captured by French: 140-Mile Advance From Riviera

NINE hours after the world heard that Paris was occupied, Allied Mediterranean H.Q. last night announced that Marseilles, second city of France, had been captured by French forces.

Lyons, the important industrial city, and the whole of the Rhone valley are threatened by General Patch's flying columns, which have entered Grenoble after a rapid advance over the mountains from the Riviera coast.

The chief city of the French Alps, Grenoble is 140 miles from the beaches where the invasion forces went ashore only eight days ago.

Lyons lies 55 miles north-west of Grenoble and 180 miles south of General Patton's forces at Sens. The Allied armies in Northern and Southern France are, therefore, 235 miles apart, and the Southern forces, at least, are advancing over an area where German resistance has been markedly weak or entirely lacking.

Good weather continues to favour their advance, the speed of which bids fair to effect a link-up soon with General Eisenhower's forces.

On the way to Grenoble, many mountain towns and villages were mopped up, including Digne, Sisteron, Aspres, Gap, St. Bonnet and L'Argentiere, the latter lying at a height of 5,249 feet.

The advance was carried out in conditions of secrecy resembling those which covered General Patton's drive from Brittany.

German resistance in the mountains was described as "spotty," except at Digne, where there the stiffest battle of the whole drive was fought.

By the push to Grenoble, the Americans now control Eastern France's most important mountain passes from positions 60 miles from the Swiss frontier.

Far behind the spearheads racing north, pressure is being tightened on the trapped German garrison inside Toulon, where bitter fighting is raging, with French troops only half a mile from the arsenal.

GATEWAY TO EAST

The capture by French forces of the great port of Marseilles, second city in France, was announced last night. Most of the port, according to H.Q., fell without much resistance. Small pockets of resistance only remain to be cleared up.

It fell with a minimum of resistance, as it was completely encircled and all escape routes cut, says Reuter's Special Correspondent.

French troops reached the shores of Etang de Berre at several points, including the southern shore, in the vicinity of Martigues.

Marseilles, which had a pre-war population of about 1,000,000, is known as "the gateway to the East." It was completely taken over by the Germans after they entered unoccupied France. Large quarters of the city were pulled down to make way for military installations.

The only easy through communication with Northern France lies up the Rhone Valley, at the mouth of which Marseilles is situated. Two railways follow the Rhone—one on either side of the river as far as Lyons, where the main lines to Paris and Switzerland converge. Inland from Marseilles there is the huge airfield of Marignane.

ENTRY AT DAWN

Reuter's Special Correspondent in Marseilles says that French troops entered the city at first light after reconnaissance in the heart of the city overnight and then withdrawn.

Detonations and some street shooting and shelling still were going on in scattered sections of the city in the afternoon, but most of it has been cleared up as the resistance forces have been almost in control for the past two days.

With the fall of Marseilles, Toulon's value has suffered a sharp decrease. Marseilles can handle a far greater volume of supplies for the Southern France invasion army, whose spearheads are moving forward to effect a rapid junction with General Patton's armour.

Besides Salon, captured by the French, the town of Lauris was taken after an advance of seven miles by an American column making one of the five drives towards the Rhone Valley. Salon is almost midway between Aix-en-Provence and Avignon. Lauris is 27 miles from Avignon on a more northerly road, which passes through Cavaillon.

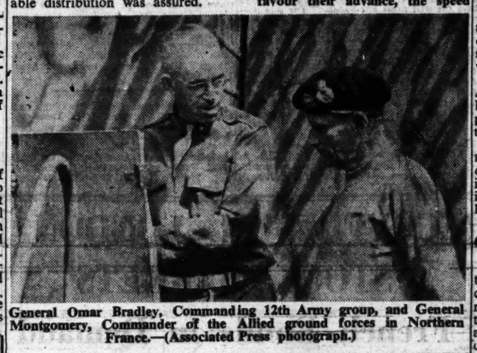

North-east of Marseilles French forces have captured high ground overlooking the sea, and also the village of Allauch, five miles from the city.

To the north the American encirclement thrust has reached the vicinity of Velaux, nine miles west of Aix. The Americans here are within three miles of the road to Salon, the only escape route from Marseilles.

On Highway Seven advanced forces are approaching Lambesc, twelve miles north-west of Aix and thirty miles from Avignon.

Of the total of over 17,000 prisoners taken since D-Day on the Riviera, 12,000 have been evacuated to Italy and Corsica.

Swiss Radio announced yesterday that the Swiss Government had withdrawn its diplomatic representation from Vichy.

LANDING ON SOUTH-WEST COAST REPORTED

AN American landing in the South-west of France was reported yesterday, but there has been no official confirmation.

The German News Agency said last night: "Backed by French partisans, American forces on Tuesday, after heavy naval bombardment, landed a small group near St. Jean de Luz, on the French-Spanish frontier. An attempt to reinforce this group under naval cover failed in face of fire from German coastal guns."

St. Jean de Luz is on the French Atlantic coast, six miles from the Franco-Spanish frontier and 12 miles south-west of Bayonne.

A Reuter message earlier yesterday from Irun, on the Spanish side of the frontier, quoted French military authorities as saying that Allied troops had landed near Arcachon, south-west of Bordeaux.

French military authorities at Hendaye said last night that 800 commandos were among the Allied forces landed south of Arcachon on Tuesday night. They said operations around Bordeaux were proceeding as planned.

Another Reuter despatch from the Spanish frontier said that the last German forces—Marines—abandoned St. Jean de Luz and Biarritz at 7.0 a.m. on Tuesday after firing a few shells in reply to Allied naval units, which had bombarded military targets in the area.

BORDEAUX DRIVE

The landing was stated to be co-ordinated with the commencement of a concerted drive by French and American forces surrounding the German Bordeaux concentrations.

French frontier guards say that the American force consisted of a motorised column which sped south from the Loire, while the French were an armed division of volunteers.

A French volunteer force left Hendaye on Tuesday night and grew in strength as it moved northward.

French forces have occupied Perpignan (just beside the French-Spanish frontier), and three Allied planes have landed there, says Radio France (Algiers).

Before leaving the Eastern Pyrenees the Germans destroyed the dépôts at Porvendre and the viaduct of Banyuls.

On Monday an American motorised column was reported to have passed through Angouleme, 130 miles south of Nantes, heading towards the Spanish frontier and meeting no resistance. German troops pulled out of Hendaye on Sunday.

Bordeaux was the seat of Paul Reynaud's Government at the time of the collapse of France, and it was there that the decision to sign an armistice with Germany was taken.

The Germans used Bordeaux as a submarine base. The city, of 200,000 people, commands the Atlantic end of the great gap which, through Toulouse and Carcassonne, links the Atlantic with the Mediterranean.

"Rumania Will Fight With Allied Nations"

"UNITY WILL SECURE JUST PEACE"

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in his quarterly Lease-Lend report to Congress yesterday, declared, cables Reuter:—

"Until the unconditional surrender of both Japan and Germany, we should continue the Lease-Lend programme on whatever scale is necessary to have the combined striking power of all the United Nations as overwhelming and as effective as we can make it."

In his letter with the report, the President said:—

"To-day the United Nations are moving relentlessly along the roads which lead to Berlin and Tokyo. For the United Nations the prospect has changed from the imminent danger of disaster to the certainty of complete victory sooner than we had hoped.

"We know that by combining our power we can speed the day of certain victory. We know also that only by continuing our unity can we secure a just and durable peace."

The President, in his letter, said that, in the preparation and execution of the powerful Allied offensives, Lease-Lend has fulfilled its promise. "We should not," he stated, "permit any weakening of this system of combined war supply to delay final victory a single day."

He placed the grand total of Lease-Lend services at 28,270,000,000 dollars (about £7,067,000,000).

After stating that the Allies had purchased 7,000 planes, and received 30,900 Lease-Lend planes and 26,900 tanks since March, 1941, the President added:—

"We retained for our own forces over 175,000 planes, 36,500 tanks and 1,500,000 other military vehicles.

"By June 30th, 1944, we had received, without cost to us, over 3,000,000,000 dollars (£725,000,000) of reverse Lease-Lend supplies and service from our allies—mostly aid provided to American forces by the British Commonwealth."

President Roosevelt concluded:—

"The Red Army is over half-way to Berlin. In the three years from June 22nd, 1941, to June 22nd, 1944, the Soviet Government has announced that the Soviet forces, while suffering the terrible numbers of 5,300,000 dead and missing soldiers, themselves have killed or captured 7,800,000 of the enemy.

"In Western Europe, the Allies are destroying hundreds of thousands of the enemy. They, too, are headed for Berlin."

This report was the President's sixteenth to Congress.

KING MICHAEL ACCEPTS PEACE TERMS

A ROYAL PROCLAMATION ACCEPTING ALLIED PEACE TERMS WAS BROADCAST BY BUCHAREST RADIO LAST NIGHT, SAYS REUTER.

THE RUMANIAN CABINET HAS FALLEN, AND THE NEW PREMIER IS GENERAL KONSTANTIN SENATESCU.

The Proclamation was made by King Michael, and in essential said:—

1—The peace terms will be accepted.
2—A new National Government will be formed.
3—Rumania will be an ally of the United Nations.
4—Rumania will take her fate into her own hands, and will fight against the enemy.
5—Citizens must rally round the Throne,
6—The Vienna award is rejected.

The proclamation by King Michael of Rumania said:—

"Rumanians,—In the difficult hour of our country, I have decided, for the salvation of the Fatherland, the immediate cessation of hostilities with the United Nations, and I call upon a Government of national union to fulfil the determined will of the country to conclude peace with the United Nations.

"Rumania has accepted an armistice offered by the Soviet Union, Great Britain and U.S.A.

"From this moment all hostilities against the Soviet Armies and the state of war with Great Britain and U.S.A. will cease.

"The United Nations have guaranteed the independence of Rumania. Anyone who opposes the decision we have taken and who takes justice in his own hands is an enemy of our nation. I order the army and the whole nation to fight with all means and at the cost of any sacrifice against him. All Rumanians must rally around the Throne and the Government.

"He who does not assist the Government and resists the will of the nation is a traitor to the country.

Bratislava Radio said this morning:—"The Slovak Government held a meeting yesterday and discussed urgent problems. Important decisions were taken."—(Reuter.)

"The United Nations have recognised the injustice of the Diktat of Vienna, under which Transylvania was torn from us.

"At the side of the Allied Army, and with their help, we will cross the frontiers unjustly imposed upon us at Vienna."

"Let us save Rumania," the King said, after the Rumanian National Anthem was played.

King Michael first ascended the throne in 1927 following the death of his grandfather, King Ferdinand. His father, Carol, was living in France in exile. Three years later Carol returned to Rumania and was proclaimed King. Carol abdicated in his son's favour in September 1940.

The London reaction was that the decision will mean that the Germans have lost control of the Ploesti oil-fields, which they have occupied since October, 1940.

Vienna Award Forced Abdication

In June, 1940, Rumania lost the province of Bessarabia and parts of Bukovina and Moldavia to Russia under an agreement between the two States. Two months later Herr Hitler, in the Vienna award, imposed an agreement with Hungary on Rumania by which Rumania lost great portions of the province of Transylvania. This loss of territory was followed by the abdication of King Carol in September, 1940. A few months later (November 23rd, 1940) Rumania, under Marshal Antonescu, joined the Axis and broke with the Allies.

Rumania declared war on Russia six days after the German invasion, June 28th, 1941.

Britain broke off relations with Rumania on February 10th, 1941, and the British blockade was extended to that country four days later. Most of the Legation staff in London had resigned more than two months earlier.

In January M. Tilea, former Rumanian Minister in London, had announced the formation of a free Rumanian Government. A Rumanian National Committee, set up in Great Britain, issued a four-point manifesto.

Great Britain declared war on Rumania on December 7th, 1941, and the United States on December 12th.

British-American Effort To Trap German Forces West of Seine

(Reuter, A.P. and P.A.)

While the spotlight is focussed on Paris, to the north-west, the great enveloping effort to trap all the German forces still west of the Seine is being pressed forwards rapidly.

Hundreds of guns are pounding the German divisions in a 20 miles "box" between the Rivers Risle and Seine, bounded by Le Neubourg, Breteuil, the Forêt de L'Aigle and Bernay.

The Americans lining the west bank of the Seine are behind the Germans, and British guns are shelling the remnants of the German 7th Army which escaped from the Falaise trap, and thousands of other Germans who crossed the Seine to help their hard-pressed comrades.

The front is moving at great speed. The Allies are driving eastwards so fast that there is much clearing up to be done in the rear areas.

General Dempsey's 2nd Army, after a seventeen-mile advance, have taken L'Aigle and crossed the River Risle, the last German-held defence line before the Seine itself.

The British-Canadian front has surged forward on a general line. The extent of the advance ranges from twenty miles in some sectors to ten to twelve in others. More than a dozen towns and villages have fallen before the Allied armour.

In the north Belgians, Dutch and other Allied troops are forging ahead against weak opposition. Deauville is firmly in Allied hands. Some of these troops on the coast are being shelled by the heavy coastal guns at Le Havre.

The British cruiser Enterprise supported the advance to Deauville and beyond by moving along the coast shelling German positions.

"POCKET" ENDED

The last vestiges of the Falaise "pocket" have now been eliminated as the advance goes on along a front of nearly 40 miles.

From Orbec to the sea the Germans are withdrawing in orderly fashion, despite their peril from the American spearheads moving down the Seine from the Mantes area.

The powerful Allied thrust to the south-east round Paris cannot be represented as a narrow advancing column, states a P.A. Correspondent at Allied Supreme Headquarters. It is officially announced that the Americans are in the Forest of Fontainebleau. They are not reported to be in the town of Fontainebleau, and there is probably fighting in the area.

Fontainebleau is over 30 miles in a direct line from Sens, the capture of which has already been reported, and the thirty miles are unlikely to represent the entire width of the swathe that the Allied army is driving round the French capital.

The territory the Americans have overrun probably extends up to the environs, at least, of Paris on the one side and to Sens on the other.

It was learned early this morning that American spearheads are now 55 miles east of Paris on the road to Germany. General Patton's reconnaissance forces have pushed 15 miles east of Sens, and are now only 20 miles from Troyes, on the Seine.

The Germans still west of the Seine (the P.A. correspondent added) are being squeezed into a rapidly-contracting area. American columns thrusting from the south are threatening to cut off the remaining retreat roads to the Seine crossings. These crossings are being attacked from the air.

WITHDRAWAL

"German forces south of the Seine have been taken back to a shorter position, which can be more easily manned by their number," said the German News Agency last night.

"In the area round Paris there have nowhere been engagements on a large scale," the Agency added. "On the upper course of the Seine, particularly in the area of Corbeil and Melun, the enemy is still exercising heavy pressure."

Guenther Weber, a German war correspondent at Marshal von Kluge's Headquarters, reported:—

"Two million soldiers are facing each other in the west of France. Fresh German panzer columns are rolling into battle."

The War in Maps

The "Irish Times" War Map No. 4, showing the terrain around Paris and northwards to the sea, is now on sale. Price 6d. from newsagents and stationers; post free, 9d. from Head Office.

War Map No. 5, showing the two latest invasion points—the Riviera and the Atlantic seaboard near Bordeaux, is now with the printer, and will be ready this week. Orders are being accepted in rotation. Price as above.

Air Battles Over Austria

Military installations in the Vienna area were bombed yesterday by heavy bombers, numbering up to 500, Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters, Mediterranean, cabled last night. Other planes bombed a railway bridge across the River Po.

Medium bombers meanwhile made their deepest penetration into France and attacked bridges as far as 190 miles north-west of Marseilles, a railway bridge on the south-eastern outskirts of Lyons, and nearby railway yards.

Considerable German fighter opposition was again encountered over Austria, the correspondent added.

The German News Agency said that the Italian-based American bombers that attacked the Vienna area were engaged by strong German fighter formations, and in sharp battles over Wiener Neustadt several raiders were shot down.

Large fires were burning and huge columns of smoke were rising from an enemy fuel dump after an attack by R.A.F. and Dutch Mitchells, the 2nd Tactical Air Force stated last night. The target at Arques la Bataille, south of Dieppe, was accurately bombed, despite very poor visibility. All aircraft returned safely.

Search was continued last night for several girl workers who were trapped when a flying bomb made a direct hit on a workshop in Southern England. Fires broke out. Most of the casualties were girls, a number of whom were killed.

Imminent danger warning of flying bombs was given by klaxon in the London area last night after a lull of some hours.

Mr. Churchill Confers With Two Premiers

Mr. Churchill met M. Papandreou, the Greek Premier, in Italy on Monday, cables Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters, Mediterranean. They found themselves in complete agreement on the Greek situation.

On Tuesday, says an A.P. message from Rome, Mr. Churchill conferred with Signor Bonomi, the Italian Prime Minister, and Marshal Badoglio.

Gripsholm Bound for Belfast—The Gripsholm sailed yesterday from New York for Belfast and Goteborg, on its fifth exchange mission, carrying tons of Christmas packages and 12,000 sacks of mail for war prisoners, the Red Cross announced.—(Associated Press.)

Britain and France March Together

Mr. Anthony Eden said at a London dinner last night, in honour of M. Rene Massigli, French National Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, that Britain and France must march together. "We have striven together in the years of war; we shall build together in the years of peace," he said, and added:—

"It is already clear that a gallant and spontaneous resistance has been maintained, against heavy odds, in the heart of Paris. I believe, unshakably, as I know does our guest, that the fortunes of our countries are linked. Whether we wish it or no, our two peoples must march together."

Polish Forces 30 Miles from Rimini

POLISH and Italian troops, thrusting another three miles north through the hilly country in the Adriatic sector, have reached the Metauro River along a 12-mile front, according to Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters, Italy. Forward elements are now only 30 miles from Rimini, gate to the Po Valley.

Allied patrols guard the whole of the south bank of the Metauro, between Monte Maggiore, in the Tuscan Apennines, and the Adriatic.

Positions on both sides of Florence have undergone little change. Indian troops across the Arno, east of Florence, ambushed and captured a German detachment of considerable size.

Partisans Active, Reports Berlin

The German High Command yesterday, in a report on operations in Southern France, quoted by the German Radio, said:—

"Inside Toulon our troops are fighting back to back against both the elements which have risen and strong American and British tank formations. Pressure is increasing hourly.

"Terrorists all over France have received a powerful impetus from the Allied landings. Their main activity at present centres on the Franco-Italian and Franco-Spanish frontiers.

"The Allied Riviera landings are being furthered by partisans, who attempt to lay hands on river crossings and road junctions, and keep them occupied for the advancing Allies. Thanks to these tactics, the enemy was, in fact, in a position to enlarge and deepen still more his foothold on the Riviera."—(Reuter and A.P.).

"Black Widow" Night Fighter

The P 61—"Black Widow"—night fighter, flying from bases in France, is now in action in defence of American forces on the Continent. This twin-tailed, twin-motored high-performance night fighter is one of the heaviest fighter aircraft ever built.—(P.A.)

54 KILLED BY PLANE CRASH

FIFTY-FOUR lives have been lost as the result of an American four-engined Liberator aeroplane falling in the centre of the village of Freckleton, near Preston, Lancashire, yesterday. The infants' department of the Church school was demolished and set on fire. The plane then rolled over and destroyed and set on fire a number of buildings opposite the school, including a garage, a snack bar and public-house.

Up to 7.30 yesterday evening the bodies of 34 children, most of whom were under five years, and 17 adults, including three of the crew of the Liberator and five women, had been recovered, and it was then feared that the total death roll might reach 80. Other deaths were reported later.

Two or three of the small school-children were rescued alive. Some of the children in the infants' school were evacuees from London, but the majority came from the village and the neighbourhood. There were 181 children in the school when the plane fell, but apart from those in the infants' school none was hurt.

In the snack bar, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Alan Whittle, who ran the bar, there were six women assistants and between 20 and 30 soldiers, all of whom it was feared were buried under the débris. The public-house and garage were also demolished, and it was thought that some people were under the wreckage.

Japanese Premier's Warning

Koiso, the Japanese Prime Minister, has appealed to the Japanese to cope with an "unprecedently grave national crisis," according to a Tokyo broadcast, picked up in New York by the Office of War Information, and cabled by Reuter.

He warned them: "The enemy is watching for an opportunity to land on our mainland."

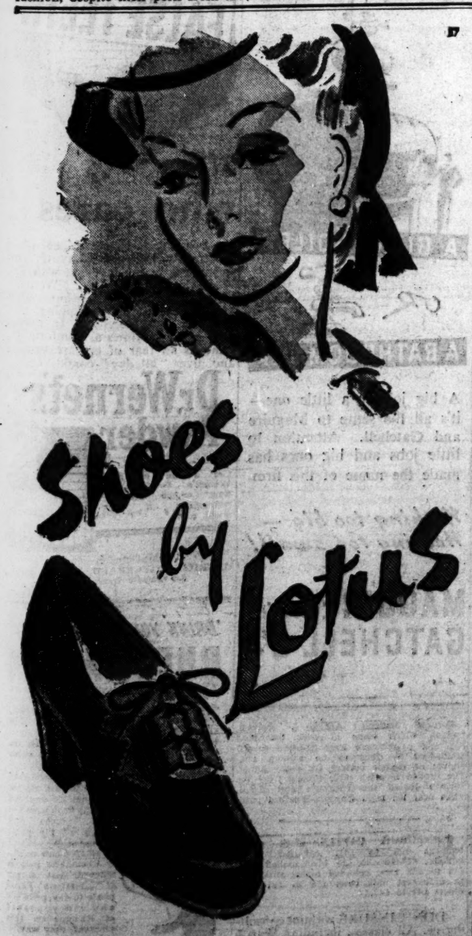

THREE ORDERS OF DAY FROM MOSCOW

THREE Orders of the Day were broadcast last night from Moscow. The first said that General Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army, in a 40-mile advance, captured Vaslui. The second Order stated that the Third Ukrainian Army, under General Tolbukhin, had taken the Black Sea port of Akkerman and the strong-point of Bender. Vaslui, between the Rivers Sereth and Pruth, stands on the line from Jassy to Galatz, some 85 miles to the south.

The third Order, addressed to Marshal Koniev, said that troops of the first Rumanian front captured Debica, a large centre of aircraft production in the Cracow direction.

According to German Radio reports, the Russians have also launched a large-scale offensive N.E. of Warsaw, between the Bug and Narew Rivers, west of Bialystok.

The Soviet communiqué stated that the following places were captured yesterday:—25 south of Dorpat, 80 south and south-east of Lomza, 70 in the Cracow direction, 150 in the Vaslui sector, and 200 in the Akkerman area. 174 German tanks were destroyed, and 94 planes shot down. The communiqué stated also that counter-attacks were repelled east and north-east of Praga and south-west of Mitau, where positions were improved.

"JUNCTION" HURDLE FOR GRANDACE?

BOTH home and course backers are set more than one difficult problem by to-day's meeting at Limerick Junction, where recent winning form will be strongly represented. The task of winner-finding is made none the lighter by the fact that several of the runners hold more than one engagement.

The field for the £200 Southern Hurdle is expected to include Charles's Wain, trained by Riddell-Martin in Co. Dublin, and it is unlikely that he would be sent the long journey unless some hopes were entertained about his prospects. So far his successes have been gained on the flat, but if carrying the support of his connections his chance must be rated a good one.

Inver Lad did not have the best of luck when beaten in a hurdle race over this distance by Abbey Boy at Powerstown Park last month, while Grandace and R.A.F. have shown winning form over the minor obstacles.

comes from a stable that is now at the top of its form, and he is taken to win from Inver Lad and R.A.F.

Amateur—Professional Golf
Woodbrook Pair Wear Down Opponents

By J. P. ROONEY.

PERSEVERANCE had its reward when, in the 36-holes final of the Amateur-Professional Foursomes at the Hermitage yesterday, Brendan Scannell and Pat O'Connor, a Woodbrook partnership that has existed since the start of the tournament, beat the Ulstermen, B. C. M'Manus (Downpatrick) and Pat Stevenson (Royal Portrush) by 3 and 2 in a remarkable game.

It was remarkable for the circumstances that at the end of the first round, played under distressing conditions, McManus and Stevenson were three up, having won the last four holes; that they were brought back to all squares at the 24th, and were in front again at the 29th.

B. J. Scannell (Woodbrook).

The golf in the morning was much below the first-class amateur-professional standard, but the most critical could not desire anything better than the play all round in the evening. The loss of their long lead so early on the last eighteen must have had a disturbing effect on the Northerners, but the primary factor in their defeat was the way they were outdistanced at the long holes.

A GOOD COMBINATION

Scannell, a scratch-man, was timing his strokes with meticulous accuracy, and getting prodigious length with wood and iron. He made the seconds for his partner easy, and it was the same when O'Connor was on the teeing ground. Scannell had to play some very skilful strokes, but difficult pulls with wood and iron were to him as simple as the long straight forward shots, and the pitching, chipping and putting left nothing to be desired.

The losers, like the winners, played their best in the evening. They rarely were off the line, and what they lost in distance was, until the strain began to tell, made up for by steadiness through the green and very sound putting by both; Stevenson, as a matter of fact, was rather unfortunate with several long putts.

As stated, the Ulstermen's lead had vanished at the 6th in the evening, and they turned all square, Scannell and O'Connor being out in an approximate 36. The 10th was a bad hole for the Woodbrook men, Scannell's tee shot being a few yards from the river, but his grandly-pulled brassey to the 11th secured a win there, and from that on the visitors always were fighting a losing battle. Result:—

B. J. Scannell and P. O'Connor (Woodbrook) beat B. C. McManus (Downpatrick) and P. Stevenson (Royal Portrush), 3 and 2 over 36 holes.

ENNIS YOUTH MAKES PROGRESS

EVEN though the start was delayed until the middle of the afternoon, there was quite good progress in the Irish junior tennis championships at Fitzwilliam yesterday. One of the four seeded players in the senior boys' singles, Hugh O'Donoghue, went out in the fourth round to S. Mulcahy, who showed better control of his shots on the slippery surface.

Ennis has supplied a promising youngster in C. Cuddy, who holds the championship of the Fergus Club. Like so many home-trained players, he is rather deficient of a backhand, but is well equipped on the other wing. He just got the better of the Newry lad, M. Short, in a vantage third set.

Pat Douglas, winner of the girls' singles at Lansdowne, continues to have hard battles, but she is a tenacious fighter, and even the loss of the first six games to Marguerite Roche did not worry her unduly. She took a firm grip of the second set, and was in front all through the third, although she never had much to spare.

SENIOR BOYS.—Fourth Round—L. Belford beat R. Barton, 6-3, 7-5; G. Price beat G. Lyons, 6-0, 6-1; R. McCabe beat S. McElroy, 6-1, 6-2; S. Mulcahy beat H. O'Donoghue, 6-4, 6-4; W. Pasley w.o., C. Dunne scr.; C. Cuddy beat M. Short, 6-2, 0-6, 7-5.

SENIOR GIRLS.—Fourth Round—C. Egan beat V. Joyce, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4; P. Douglas beat Marguerite Roche, 0-6, 6-2, 6-4; D. Eaton beat M. Powell, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3; A. McCabe beat M. Roche, 6-3, 6-2; C. Ryan beat J. Carey, 6-4, 6-2; H. Manning beat R. Ronan, 7-5, 6-2; P. O'Reilly beat V. Miley, 6-4, 7-5 M. Meenan beat H. McGinty, 6-1, 6-3.

JUNIOR GIRLS.—Quarter-Finals — J. Dwyer beat C. O'Connor, 6-2, 7-5; E. Dolan beat J. Cairn Duff, 6-0, 6-2.

Nine Trackers Top "100" Mark

NINE dogs topped the 100-guinea mark at Messrs. Goff and Company's greyhound sale at Harold's Cross, yesterday. Mr. G. Richardson, acting on behalf of Mr. F. Hall, a cross-Channel dealer, paid 270 guineas for Sparkling Forethought, a 1943 dog, by Pretty Forethought out of Bride Valley Cailin, and winner of its heat before the sale in 31.24 secs. Rusty Moon, second in the same heat, was purchased by Mr. B. Gallagher for 175 guineas, and he bought also Ballymakeera Highland and Scooter, for 160 and 110 guineas, respectively.

Mr. W. Penny also was dually concerned in transactions of over the hundred mark, paying 140 guineas for Musical Comic, and 115 for Reen Light, a winner at both the Dublin tracks. Gns.

FIELD OF FANCIED SPRINTERS

ALL the most fancied horses for the Nunthorpe Stakes, the sprint championship, which will be run at Newmarket on Wednesday next, are among the acceptances for the race.

Mr. Lambton relies on the older horse, Sir Edward, instead of Golden Cloud, who has been quoted at 14 to 1.

Three of the twelve acceptances, Pamphilos, the favourite, Bell Agnes, and Fragrant View, are trained in the North. Fragrant View was reckoned one of the best two-year-olds of last year, but in her only race this year, which was in April, she ran badly. She is to run on Saturday at Stockton in a £1,000 sprint handicap.

		Age	st.	lb.
War Hero	Laye	4	9	0
Sir Edward	Lambton	6	9	0
Sugar Palm	Hartigan	6	9	0

Happy Landing.—Mr. W. Hutchinson's St. Leger candidate, Happy Landing, moved well when, accompanied by Pennyleaf, he galloped one mile and seven furlongs at Newmarket, yesterday, at a good pace. Bonivant joined in the spin during the last mile.

DRUMS WIN IN DERRY

In a benefit match for Charles Glenn, Derry City trainer, at Derry last night, Drumcondra beat Derry City by 2-0. Drumcondra had the better of the play all through, and, but for the valiant work of Carlyle (centre-half) and Doherty (goalkeeper), would have scored more goals.

Ten minutes from the end, Lawlor shot through a ruck of players to register Drums' first goal, and three minutes later Ward got a loose ball and beat Doherty from close range.

BARLOWE BACK AGAIN

Paddy Barlowe has been resigned for Dundalk, and will play for the side in the opening match against Bohemians at Dundalk on Sunday. Donnelly will play at centre-half, as Brendan Flanagan, who was the original choice, sustained an injured knee in the trial game last Sunday. The side is:—Barnes; Noonan and Hearty; Parkin, Donnelly and O'Brien; Barlowe, McLoughlin, Donal Flanagan, Mathews and Mulholland.

Limerick team to meet Shamrock Rovers selected on Sunday is—Tierney; Holman and Pte. Aherne; Lappin, Keane and Sergt. Darcy; Kearns, Dunne, Pte. O'Leary, Cronin and Pte. O'Sullivan.

Cork United (v. Shelbourne, on Sunday) —Harrington; McGowan, Thorpe, Cotter, P. Quinn, Noonan; O'Driscoll, P. J. Flannery, McCarthy, Duffy, Venner.

BOWLING.—Boyd Cup Final—E. A. Ingram and D. A. O'Leary (Kenilworth), 22; M. Hogan and A. Wilson (St. James's Gate), 20.

SHARP RECOVERY IN LONDON STOCK MARKETS
French Bonds in Demand

A DISTINCT change in sentiment was seen on the London Stock Exchange yesterday afternoon. The opening was dull, but with news of the recapture of Paris, which came around midday, there was a decided turn round.

Immediate bidding for the popular Industrial issues was experienced. Sellers disappeared like magic, but it is early yet to think that buyers have returned to the market in any force. This may be seen in the next few days, as there is evidence that the recent reaction has spent its force.

Most of the popular securities, such as Courtaulds, Distillers, British Plaster Board, Marks and Spencer, London Brick and Coats, put on from 6d. to 1s. 3d. Tobaccos, after early dullness, turned better; but there was no special recovery among Breweries, Shipping or Iron and Steel issues.

The Funds maintained a distinctly strong tone, with War Loan 3½ p.c. at 104⅛. British Rails, however, failed to participate in the recovery, but Argentine Rails were better.

Among Foreign Bonds, Brazils made fresh headway, and French Railway Sterling Bonds continued in demand, but Chinese issues were weak.

In Oils, a feature was recovery in Attock Ord. to 76s. 9d., against a price of under 72s. quoted at one time on Tuesday. Mining Markets remained subdued.

A few weeks ago we gave a short table of leading Industrial shares, representing many millions of invested capital, showing the extent of the rise in their prices due to the strong buying movement that continued through June and July. Here is a similar table indicating the effect of the reverse movement:—

	May 30.	July 30.	Now.
Assoc. Cement..	66/6	70/6	68/6
Imp. Tobacco..	156/10½	163/9	156/3
Courtaulds	53/0	60/0	56/1½
Boots (5/-).....	43/9	60/0	55/3
Dunlop	43/9	48/0	46/0
Distillers	92/9	107/6	102/0
Woolworths (5/-)	61/3	70/0	67/3
Jn. Brown (10/-)	26/10½	31/0	29/0
Molasses	38/6	39/0	38/0
Imp. Chemicals..	39/7½	40/3	39/0

Such a table might be indefinitely extended with similar results. Much of the rise enjoyed in those two buoyant months has vanished. Cash profits have been taken in many cases, but for the great mass of investors it is a case of "as you were."

Each day's reaction is adding to the attractiveness of the new price level to would-be buyers. Their presence was demonstrated yesterday in the recovery which took place on the announcement of the capture of Paris.

The £1 shares of Modern Machine Tools, Ltd., fell 3/- yesterday on the announcement of a cut in the final dividend from 10 to 7½ p.c. This makes 15 p.c. for the year, against 17½ p.c. for 1942, and 20 p.c. for 1941 and 1940. The company has an issued capital of £120,000, all in £1 Ordinary shares, quoted at 40/-.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Wednesday.—Dealings were slower than in the previous session, but spots of strength were evident throughout. Some Motors, Air Transports, Utilities and Industrials advanced fractions, with several reaching new high levels for more than a year.

The market closed steady. The turnover of 788,000 shares comprised 850 issues, of which 348 advanced, 257 declined and 245 remained unchanged.—(Reuter.)

B.A.T. Dividend

A SECOND interim dividend of 10d. per share, equal to 4 1-6 per cent., on account of the current year ending September 30th has been declared by the British American Tobacco Company.

This is at the same rate as a year ago, and again brings the distributions for the year to date up to 8⅓ per cent. (1s. 8d. per share).

Financial Items

THE Blyvooruitzicht Gold Mining Company has not yet made official application to the Mining Leases Board for additional mining areas, but it is learned that tentative discussions have been going on for some time. The areas concerned lie north-east and south of the present Blyvoor area, and amount to about 20 p.c. of the existing area.

Presiding at the annual meeting, in Derby yesterday, Sir John P. Fry, the chairman of Shipley Collieries, Ltd., said the directors felt it unwise to retain the balance of £403,436 outstanding Debs. at the high rate of 5½ p.c., and had decided to redeem them. It is intended to issue 200,000 Ord. shares to shareholders.

Announcement by Vactric of a final dividend of 15 p.c. is up to the highest market expectations, and makes a total of 22½ p.c. for the year ended March last. For earlier war years there was no distribution. However, the 5/- shares have recently risen to a seven-year peak of 18/- on the market learning that the company's results for 1943-44 had been very favourable.

Pease and Partners announce that the arrangement for the acquisition of the Ordinary share capital of East Hetton Collieries has now been completed, and the scheme of capital organisation of the East Hetton Company has been approved by the High Court.

Brewery dealers yesterday marked down Woodhead Cannonbury from 11/6-12/6 to 10/-11/3 in self-protection, as, although new acquisition should benefit the company, holders will be acquiring the new shares at 10/-.

ANOTHER FALL IN GUINNESS

MARKETS dragged along in uninteresting fashion on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday. Trading was still on modest lines, and small scattered liquidation, in the absence of support, caused an easier trend in places.

Among Government Funds, Second National Loan drooped to 113½, and Fourth Loan fell 15s. to 107½; but 4 per cent. Conversion Loan recovered to 109.

Guinness Units were still sellers and relapsed 1s. to 133s. 3d., while Grand Canal Pref. enjoyed support and advanced 1s. 10½d. to 123s.

In Rails, Gt. Southern Pref. shaded off to 57, but the Deb. firmed up to 94⅞. Gt. Northern Deb. shed a fraction at 85⅞. Dublin Transport Ord. and Pref. were in demand, and closed pence better.

Draperies were quietly supported; Crowe Wilson Ord. made headway to 18s 10½d., and Switzer Deb. hardened to 10. Ranks (Ireland) Ord. declined to 13s. 6d., but Brooks Thomas Pref. rose to 22s. 6d. Irish Times 1st Pref. improved to 92s. 6d.

British Industrials remained dull. Imperial Tobacco Ord. lost 1s 7½d. at 156s. 10½d., and Imperial Chemical Ord. gave way to 39s., while Courtaulds Ord. were lowered to 55s. 10½d.

SKIN DISEASE
COMPLETELY VANISHES

writes grateful lady of 66

"I tried several ointments but with no benefit and then my daughter suggested Valderma. I got a pot and after thoroughly washing my back with hot soap and water, she applied it pretty thickly. It relieved the awful itching right away and we kept up the treatment thrice daily. Now, after two weeks, it is quite better and the skin is quite clean and free from blemish." L.S. (Mrs.)

Science has proved that most skin ailments are due to more than one kind of germ. That is why Valderma contains two antiseptics, so that germs escaping one antiseptic are accounted for by the second. In addition to this 'double-antiseptic' action Valderma is made on a new principle. It is what chemists call an 'oil-in-water' emulsion, which permits poisonous matter to pass away without risk of re-infection. Valderma quickly heals Dermatitis, Eczema, Boils, Rashes, Pimples, "Athlete's Foot" and similar skin troubles. Valderma is white — does not stain! — bland and agreeable. Hospital and Laboratory tested, and prescribed by Skin Specialists, it is the ideal treatment for skin infections, cuts, grazes and burns too! 2/- a jar.

THE BATTLE OF FRANCE

The kaleidoscope of war in France is turning with bewildering speed. Events are following one another so rapidly that news is stale almost before it can be printed. Yesterday morning it was announced that Paris no longer was in German hands. Full details still are lacking; but there seems to be small doubt that the French capital now is controlled by the French people. During the last few days official reports have been vague. It has been obvious that important moves have been in progress. Nevertheless, everybody was taken by surprise when it was announced from General Koenig's headquarters that a mass insurrection of the Parisians had been ordered last Saturday. It seems that 50,000 armed Frenchmen, helped by some hundreds of thousands of unarmed civilians, rose in revolt against the Germans in Paris. The police had been on strike for some days, and the French took possession of the Cité—that district of Paris which houses Notre Dame. For four days there was fierce fighting, but, apparently, the rising could not be quelled; and, for all practical purposes, the Germans had evacuated Paris by yesterday morning. While this internal revolt was in progress, the Allied armies were closing their grip upon the city from both sides. Americans were reported yesterday to be fighting in the forest of Fontainebleau. General Patton's troops have occupied Sens, on the east bank of the Yonne, and the Allied thrust to the south-east of Paris is developing with remarkable speed. Allied forces are closing in upon the capital. The enveloping movement towards the north has been accelerated by an Anglo-Canadian advance along the coast as far as and including Deauville, one of Europe's most fashionable watering-places in pre-war days; and it is evident that General Montgomery is making a supreme effort to trap all those German divisions that still are fighting west of the Seine. According to Allied reports, the "Pocket" in the Argentan-Falaise area has been eliminated. The Allies yesterday were in possesion of Pont l'Evêque. The Germans are falling back in the general direction of Rouen. Günther Weber, one of their principal war correspondents, stated yesterday that no fewer than 2,000,000 soldiers were facing one another in the western battlefield. He added that fresh German Panzer divisions were being flung into the fray. The German reports also stated that Marshal von Kluge had taken back his forces south of the Seine in order to shorten his line.

The news from Paris naturally overshadows anything else in immediate interest. Events in the south, however, are moving with speed. General Patch's flying columns have entered Grenoble, which is 140 air-miles from the beaches of the Riviera. Lyons, where French partisans had been active for some time past, also is threatened; and the Germans are preparing to offer strong resistance in the valley of the Rhone. The Allied armies operating in the north-west and in the south are now stated to be about 235 miles apart. The advance to Grenoble was undertaken by General Patch in conditions of the utmost secrecy. American troops now are only about sixty miles from the Swiss frontier. Along the coast the Allied forces are continuing their attacks against Toulon and Marseilles. Some days ago it was reported that Toulon was in the hands of French insurgents; but the Germans seem still to hold the surrounding hills. In Marseilles, as in the romantic old city of Perpignan, French partisans are stated to have risen in revolt; and its fall is announced this morning. In the meantime, while the Allies have crossed the Seine at several points, and are driving northwards from the Riviera at a speed that is said to have outrun their schedule, fresh landings are reported in the neighbourhood of the Spanish frontier. According to the Germans, these landings have taken place near St. Jean de Luz, yet another favourite resort of European holiday-makers. It is twelve miles south of Bayonne, and in the immediate neighbourhood of Biarritz. The Germans declare that the first attempts of the Americans to land their troops in this region were frustrated. Allied bulletins so far have been silent on the matter. In this region, French partisans seem to be operating in considerable strength; but it is impossible at the moment to estimate the military position, particularly in view of the wild rumours that have been in circulation during the last few days. With the capture of Grenoble, and the advance of General Montgomery's forces towards the Marne, the general strategy of the Allied invaders is beginning to reveal itself in sharper outline. The purpose of the invasion of the Riviera, as well as the landings along the Côte des Basques, manifestly is to put into operation a gigantic enveloping movement, which has as its ultimate object the annihilation of the German armies in France. Marshal von Kluge already has contrived to extricate a not inconsiderable number of his troops from the "Kessel" or "pocket," in which they found themselves in Normandy. He is faced now with a like problem on a vastly bigger scale. The loss of Paris places him at a decided disadvantage. His immediate aim must be to save his armies from encirclement.

Fairy Tale

New folk-tales, bearing the authentic stamp of the brothers Grimm, scarcely are expected in industrial England. Yet the Manchester Guardian records one which is said to be heard in many different districts, and manifestly is a genuine product of war conditions. The details vary, as they should vary in a true folk-tale. Every narrator adds his own trimmings and discards the elements which he feels to be unnecessary; but the core of the story remains the same. Its hero is a little black boy, who is sent from London as an evacuee, together with a host of white children. Kindly housewives descend upon the rest centre in the reception area, and one by one the white children are borne off to homes where they are cared for and cherished; but the little black boy remains. Unwanted and forlorn, he sits in the deserted rest centre and waits for a woman who will take him, too. At last somebody arrives—the weary and work-worn mother of a large family—who takes pity on the solitary child. To her his colour makes no difference; he is merely a little boy who is lonely and wants a home. She welcomes him and takes him off to her little house. That night, when she is undressing the now happy child, she finds, sewn inside his little shirt, a bulky package. The covering letter informs her that it is intended for her, and the contents of the envelope prove to be bank notes to the value of several hundred pounds. That is the accepted happy ending. The best version of the story, however, has another refinement—a veritable stroke of genius. The mother, not losing her head on account of her sudden riches, proceeds to bath the little boy thoroughly; the black colouring gradually washes away, and he turns out to be white after all. That is the fairy-tale—and a very good one it is. One would like to inquire whether underlying this tale there may not be a growing sympathy with the coloured races among the common people of England. If so, the world will benefit from an increase of tolerance; if not, it will have gained at least a new story.

ANTI-PARTITION LEAGUE FORMED

At an inaugural meeting, representative of Tyrone and Fermanagh men resident in Dublin, held on Tuesday evening in the Talbot Hotel, Dublin, it was decided to establish an Anti-Partition League. The immediate object of the League will be the carrying out of intensive propaganda campaigns in Eire, the Six Counties, England, Scotland, Wales, and all foreign countries. Inaugural meetings of Antrim-Derry and Armagh-Down groups will be held later.

Cardinal MacRory, on behalf of himself and the clergy and laity of the Diocese of Armagh, has forwarded to Monsignor Tardini, Vatican City, a cable expressing to the Pope their deepest sympathy on the death of Cardinal Maglione.

FOOD POISONING INQUIRY URGED

WHEN the Dail meets next month information will be sought regarding recent outbreaks of food poisoning and typhoid fever. The attention of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health will be directed to the danger of carriers, and he will be asked how the matter may best be dealt with. It is understood that the question of a register of carriers will be raised, in view of the fact that one of the outbreaks was traced to a carrier.

Meanwhile, Councillor James Larkin, who raised the matter in the Dublin Corporation, has, it is understood, received requests from citizens all over Dublin to call a public meeting to have the entire matter ventilated, especially from the point of view of the loose handling of foodstuffs.

Attention has been directed to the sale of fish in Dublin. Bad fish, it was alleged yesterday, has been sold in the outlying areas of the city. An alderman stated yesterday that the fish traffic in Dublin was a "veritable scandal." Hawkers, and even shopkeepers, he said, who were unable to get the price required for the fish, dumped it in laneways and alleys, where it was allowed to remain for days uncollected. He mentioned the names of different districts where this had occurred.

Discussing the need for a more intensive control of the milk supply, a Public Health authority said that a new milk bill was overdue. The 1934 measure, in its emasculated form, was very wide of the mark, especially as a new Act now was in force in Great Britain.

Stressing the need for efficient pasteurisation, he outlined the many milk-borne diseases, which include tuberculosis, typhoid, paratyphoid, diphtheria, undulant fever and foot-and-mouth disease. It was as necessary, he stated, to safeguard the city's milk supply as it was to safeguard the water supply, which was protected from defilement of all kinds.

UNDER CONTROL

In a statement yesterday, Dr. M. Russell, City Medical Officer of Health, said that there was no occasion for alarm in regard to typhoid and food poisoning. From the numerous inquiries directed to the Public Health Offices of the Dublin Corporation, he said, it would appear that considerable public apprehension had been aroused concerning the incidence of infectious disease, more especially transmissable intestinal disease. Residents in Dublin, and the many visitors now in the city, had no occasion to feel alarmed. He added: "It will be seen from a statement recently issued by me that such limited outbreaks as have occurred have been brought under control with the least possible delay. Apart from this epidemic, there has been no incidence of infectious diseases over and above what is usual in normal times for the season of the year."

It is understood that the City Manager, Dr. P. J. Hernon, now is making personal investigations in preparedness for his forthcoming report to the Corporation.

It is understood that doctors in a Dublin fever hospital have been warned to give no more information to the Press, who now have to depend on the weekly official reports concerning the health of the city. The warning was given by the City Manager. The last available report showed that there were 51 cases of typhoid for the week ended August 12th.

BANK STRIKE WOULD BE UNPRECEDENTED

Should a strike of bank officials occur in Eire business generally would be placed in jeopardy, apart from the great inconvenience that would be caused to clients.

"It is difficult to visualise the inevitable widespread clogging of the machinery of every-day life that would accrue," a well-known banker told a reporter. "A strike would be unprecedented, and we have no means of measuring the extent of the chaos a strike of bank officials would bring about."

"The only logical conclusion to come to," he said, "is that circumspect clients of the banks will now make the necessary withdrawals to tide them over a possible period of emergency. The case of the big business establishments would present another problem.

"If the staffs decide to withdraw their labour, the banks cannot open or fulfil their obligations to the public. At least two or three key men would be required to enable any bank to operate."

The position of the banks themselves is obscure. They are legally bound to open on all days, except Sundays and Bank Holidays. It is believed that the Government will intervene.

The party meeting for the purpose of selecting a leader will be held before the resumption of the Dail on September 19th.

"THE NEW ART PATRONAGE"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I would like to express my hearty approval of Mr. Patrick Kavanagh's article in connection with the art exhibition in Dublin at the moment.

There seems to be a certain amount of doubt about what was meant by it all. A reader has very justly remarked that a large number of the finest artists and thinkers have come from the middle classes, and in so saying repudiates Mr. Kavanagh's apparently unjust attack on this "bourgeois" class. But, as far as I can see, this observation means nothing whatsoever; for I feel sure that if an artist born in such a class had allowed himself to be enveloped and stifled by it, and had not endeavoured to escape from it in some way, he would not have attained to any appreciable greatness in his art; for the great byword of the middle "bourgeois" class is mediocrity, and there is no room for anything but the best in art.

The real point is that the proper artist belongs to no class except to the artistic class, if one may call it so; and, therefore, to ask to what class Mr. Kavanagh belongs is simply stupid. It is as an artist that he criticises the exhibition in Dublin, and, in being so, he has a right to look with disapproval on the authorities' attempt to standardise art into a mould that will suit middle class mediocrity; for unless art is to be given freedom in order that it may grow and develop, it will become something mediocre and will die away.—Yours, etc.,

KINGSLEY SCOTT.

"El Greco lacks in knowledge of anatomy" (Seán Keating, ibidem).

APPRECIATION

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—From my clipping service I just received a clipping dated January 31st, 1944, from the "Irishman's Diary" column in your paper which reported the arrival of a Miss Diana Wong. This is just to express my appreciation that your paper is taking the trouble to print the fact that Miss Diana Wong is no relation of mine. Usually that is a point overlooked by most of the Press.

I have just returned from entertaining the United States troops in Alaska, which was a wonderful experience, and did as much to lift my morale in these trying times, I hope in return our show gave them some cheer.

With renewed thanks for your considerate mention, I am, yours, etc.,

RISE IN DIPHTHERIA FEARED

Despite the fact that several thousands of children had been immunised in Dublin, the Public Health authorities are not satisfied with the response to their appeals to parents and guardians to take precautions to ensure that the incidence of diphtheria would be restricted, an Irish Times reporter learned yesterday.

Dr. M. J. Russell, City Medical Officer of Health, stated yesterday that during the next few months a rise in the incidence of diphtheria may be expected, due to the seasonal variation, which has been universally recognised. Parents and guardians would be well advised, he said, to take advantage immediately of the facilities offered by Dublin Corporation at numerous clinics throughout the city to have their children immunised. This, he added, was particularly desirable in the case of young children, and it was recommended that it should be done as early as possible after a child had reached the age of one year.

Dr. Russell added that if people had not a private doctor they should attend the Corporation clinics.

SHORTAGE OF MATCHES TO CONTINUE

There is a match famine in Dublin at present. Even regular customers who used to be sure of at least one box a week are being turned down by harrassed tobacconists. The pipe-smoker is hit very hard. The cigarette-smoker is not in such bad circumstances, as he can always obtain a light.

An Irish Times reporter made some inquiries of wholesalers yesterday, and ascertained that in June of this year the quota was cut by 12½ per cent., leaving them with a reduction of 58 per cent. on pre-emergency supplies. The manufacturers are experiencing difficulties. Native timber is being utilised, but they depend on imports for some essential chemicals. No matches are being imported. It is unlikely that there will be any improvement in supplies for a long time.

Housewives who depend on matches for domestic uses are also feeling the pinch. Some people carefully split each match with a safety-raor blade, and by exercising care in striking can thus eke out a longer ration

MUSICIAN'S EARNINGS "EXAGGERATED"

When a boy, aged 13, appeared on remand before District Justice McCarthy, in the Children's Court, Dublin Castle, yesterday, Mr. Gleeson (Mr. L. Trant McCarthy's office), who defended, referring to a statement made at the previous hearing that the boy's sister, aged 20, could make £3 a day playing the piano accordion in the streets, described it as "grossly exaggerated," and added that when the girl made the statement she was telling lies.

The girl's mother, in evidence, said that her daughter gave her 2/- or 1/6 a day. It was untrue to say she had £1 9/- on her when arrested.

On the application of Mr. Gleeson, the Justice gave the girl an extension of time to pay a £5 fine imposed on her at the previous hearing, and adjourned the case against the boy until October 22nd with a warning that he should keep off the streets in the meantime.

News In Brief

Food Allowances.—Under an extension of the Food Allowances scheme, dependent children (under 16) of old age pensioners and blind pensioners over 70 years of age will be included. This is conditional on their being resident in urban areas in which the scheme is operating. The first vouchers will be issued on September 22nd.

Cheaper Onions.—Onions are to be approximately 3d. per lb. cheaper under the revised maximum wholesale and retail prices made by the Minister for Supplies. Details are given in advertising columns.

Evacuees at Dun Laoghaire.—When the mail boat from Holyhead docked at Dun Laoghaire last night she carried 940 passengers, of whom about 180 were evacuees. Members of Dun Laoghaire branch of the Irish Red Cross Society were in attendance to meet the evacuees.

Mallow Creamery Strike.—No change in the strike situation at Mallow was reported yesterday. During the day the creamery committee held a special meeting, and they also met Dr. H. Kennedy, Secretary, I.A.O.S.

The Department of Agriculture have been officially informed by the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries that an outbreak of foot and mouth disease has been confirmed at Horsforth, Leeds, Yorkshire. The usual precautions have been taken.

ABBEY Theatre, second house. Much has been written about the 'gaelicising' of the Abbey Theatre, the cultural necessity (or unnecessity) for a 'native drama.' There is, of course, no 'necessity' for drama at all and nobody realises that more clearly than we Irish persons. Consider this statement by one of our most distinguished scholars:

"The Irish literature which kept on developing—to some extent at least—for over a thousand years, and of which 1,000 volumes still exist, never evolved a drama, nor, as far as I know, so much as a miracle play, although these are found in Welsh and even Cornish. . . ."

Should, then, one weep when one is told that the Abbey is in decline, that extinction threatens its execrable cult of foreignism, subsidised though it be by inarticulate tax-payers? What can one say of the monstrous inversion of putting this exotic mummery into a Gaelic garb and bribing peasants to play at being (of all things in this perishing world) . . . . peasants?

As a social factor, the theatre is no more important than the pub—"art" and "culture" notwithstanding. Most theatres are pubs and they make much more money out of drams than dramas. But the theatre is important as an index to public morality. I seem to recall that John Gunther has pointed out in one of his interior monologues ("Inside Europe," I think) that countries in which grand opera flourishes are sickening (or have sickened) for totalitarian régimes. I believe this is true. It is no pleasure to recall that still another opera combine was started in Dublin recently. The Capitol may be a good pull-up for "Carmen" but still . . . . I don't know. Timeo virum unius libretto.

Modern drama is credited with a descent from certain Hellenistic capers. It is a foul pedigree. The artistic attainments of ancient Greece were matched only by the depravity of her citizens in the moral sphere. It does not quite follow that the contemporary and dramaless Irish were suckled in virtue but it is undeniable that ancient Irish literature is innocent of the unsavoury themes which so obsessed the Greeks. The Romans demanded only bread and circuses. There is here an implied antithesis. The one is essential and wholesome, the other a debauch. What is happening in Dublin to-day? My incredible wife hears the rat-tat at the back door, hastily dries her red squaw-hands on a roller-towel made from a ripped flour bag, opens the door and says to the man with the basket Two turn-overs an' a small pan plee-ez. Later in the day I am invited to turn from my books and listen to this: Would you think of goin' to d'Abbey to-night? Professor Tim's on an' it's six months since I seen it. No doubt you comprehend the almost comic dilution of classical profligacy? The Irish desire to be bad—but not too bad; the small pan loaf—that timorous approach to European brœtchen. And finally, the illicit thrill of peering out from behind a steel pillar in the Mechanics Institute!

I make no decision (to-day, anyhow) as to whether the Abbey is in decline or not. But I do say that it is a foreign institution and that provision should have been made under Article Ten to have it cleared out of the country. And what, you say, about the little 'intimate' hundred-seat theatre at the back? That? Juno what I'd do with the Paycock? I'd send it packing just as quick. With the banished Abbey let there go forth also the abbot's love-child.

DUBLIN STREET CLEANSING

"THE statements made in the Press and elsewhere are, where not positively untrue, grossly exaggerated, and give an entirely false impression of the position," said Mr. P. J. Hernon, Dublin City Manager and Town Clerk, in a statement yesterday on street-cleansing and refuse-collecting.

Mr. Hernon said that a series of special inspections had been made in the past week to "discover if there were really grounds for the statements." In the case of tenements visited, in which refuse had not been collected for four days, it was found that the bins were not full; there was no offensive odour, and there was a complete absence of flies. Refuse chutes of the flats in St. Mary's Mansions, from which a collection had not been made for several days, contained a very small quantity of refuse, and there was a complete absence of smell and of flies.

"There is no justification whatever," said the City Manager, "for ascribing the health of the city to any defects in the system of refuse collection. In the case of nearly all tenements, there is a two-day-a-week collection. Arrangements are, however, being made to have the collections in such cases increased to three times a week, subject to petrol supplies being available."

Referring to street cleansing, Mr. Hernon said that, as far as existing conditions permit, under the system of street patrols, and in view particularly of the fact that brushes suitable for street cleansing are not only in very limited supply, but irreplaceable when worn out, the situation is as effectively handled as is possible. An improvement could be made in street-cleaning by the use of watering cars, and arrangements have been made to put a number of them in service, subject to additional petrol supplies being available.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

New Arrival

FROM to-morrow, this column will be written by somebody else: for Quidnunc is going on his holidays.

Circumstances are now ideal for a holiday. The brassy August sun is veiled by a quiet autumn sky. Rain has been falling. The evenings are growing dark. In the air already is the rough feel of winter.

People are now returning from their holidays by the sea. For consolation they are thinking already of that post-holiday healer—toast for tea by the fireside, and the curtains drawn against October in the streets. They think of some new hobby for the winter. They even regard the glow of the Christmas shop windows, and the possibility of getting some skating this year.

Under these circumstances I set out for my summer holidays—with a sad tennis racquet, golf clubs and a new bathing dress.

How it came to this I do not know.

Sweet Memories

Quiet and grey is my mood. I remember other summer holidays—a summer holiday in a castle by Lough Ree. We hired the castle for £20. Before we could move in, we nearly had to drive the rabbits out. The surrounding fields moved with rabbits. The ground throbbed and drummed with rabbits as we walked about. They approached the windows of the castle and looked in.

We sent for ammunition—crates of shotgun cartridges. It was like this.

We sat at breakfast one morning. At one end of the room, wide open to the morning sun, was a huge window.

"Don't move," said Mr. A. He reached down, picked up his shotgun, and, with both elbows on the table, shot a rabbit sitting on the grass, giving it both barrels clean across his fried eggs. He laid the gun on his knees and finished his breakfast.

Out on Grass

We became increasingly reckless. After dark we drove about the field before the castle in cars, shooting rabbits, impaled on the beam of the headlights, from the sunshine roofs. The hedges used to be lined with natives of the place, wondering at the swerving lights, the explosions and the shouting.

There were black rabbits on the estate, and wild cats. The cats used to carry kittens to the mouth of the burrows, go underground, and return with junior dead rabbits for the kittens' meal. We believed that the black rabbits were the progeny of rabbits who had mated with the wild cats, because we were told so by an ancient gardener. There was a special prize for a black rabbit, but they were possessed of a guile that continuously kept them out of harm's way.

Watch, Plank and Barrel

During that month, a Mr. D. came up from Athlone with a pretty white motor cruiser. Mr. D. brought his shot-gun. He left it in the engine-room of the boat. Somebody knocked it into the engine, denting both barrels.

When Mr. D. went bathing he left his wrist watch wrapped in a towel. The wrist watch got shaken over the side. When we were leaving the anchorage, in which Mr. D. had had so much pleasure, the anchor cable became foul in the navel-pipe leading to the chain locker. We pulled three planks out of the deck trying to clear it.

I recall these extremes of behaviour with gentle amazement. Anybody else looking back upon his own holidays will probably do the same. Holidays have a way of starting as rest-cures, and, about the middle, achieving a threat to human life.

Brittas Bungalow

Holidays have another feature. There is nothing so monotonous as the story of somebody else's holiday; and nothing that makes better telling than the story of your own. The memory of Lough Ree has cheered me greatly. But I would not care to listen for long to—"This summer, me and Billy and Ferdie and Agnes and George and Molly went to Arthur's bungalow at Brittas Bay. Arthur's gone to Rosapenna, with Essie and Vi and Frank and the children, just for the change. Well, you never saw such a time. In and out of the sea all day. But, this afternoon, anyway, Ferdie and George and Billy dressed up in the girls' clothes, and what do you think they started to . . . but wait, I'll show you the snaps. You'll fall over."

The snaps, when they are found, show three young men, grinning madly, posing with a medicine ball on a fortunately deserted beach. It turns out that this was the time the boys were doing the Russian ballet number, and not the female impersonation act; but the Russian ballet was amusing, too.

Vale

I have now worked myself into such a condition of despair that I do not wish to be saddled with the necessity for enjoying a holiday at all. It is so much easier to stay where you are—miserable, perhaps, but at least not standing in your raincoat on the steps of the Grand Ozone Hotel, waving goodbye to the holiday-makers who have been there for August, and are now returning, with lively anticipation, to the winter season of theatres, dinners and dances. The management has already taken down the tennis net. With the lifebuoy from the bathing-place, it will be stored in the cellar until next summer, safe from the erosion of the winter wind and rain.

Holidays . . . . Ah me.
Goodbye,
QUIDNUNC.

P.S.—Please don't ring me up to-day to tell me that the Irish Times clock in Westmoreland street is wrong. It isn't. It's stopped. We all have to have our insides attended to at times.

VOCATIONAL ORGANISATION

IV—INDUSTRY

THE need for a strong self-preservative vital force in industry is stressed in the Report of the Commission on Vocational Organisation. Without this, State interference tended ultimately to exceed the bounds of prudence, and even justice. The ultimate aim should be to organise industry into vocational groups, with representatives on a national industrial conference; but the more pressing need was the internal organisation of each industry, which could very well be based on existing employers' and workers' associations and joint industrial councils.

An employers' association is suggested by the report for every scheduled industry, each association to be registered by a competent authority and recognised by the State as representing the employers of that industry. On the workers' side, the Commission says that for vocational organisation the statesmanlike procedure would be to seek, with as little coercive action as possible and no violent change, to integrate in a wider organisation the institutions that have resulted from decades of experience, skill and hard work. The existence here of foreign-controlled unions would create a problem, and increase the difficulties of vocational organisation.

An industrial board for each industry, registered with, and under the supervision of, a national industrial office is suggested by the Commission, and the members of such boards should be nationals and drawn from enterprises which in law and fact are Irish. The cost should be distributed among the units of the industries.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE

The final stage of industrial vocational organisation would be the setting up of a National Industrial Conference, with representatives of all the registered industrial boards; a governing body appointed by the Conference and a permanent industrial office controlled by the governing body. The Conference would consist of 100 persons; and Dail deputies and senators would be ineligible for membership of the governing body.

In an appendix to the industrial section of the report, the Commission examines the question of organisation of trade unions, and states that "national sovereignty and national security require that the control of trade unions in this country should be in the hands of Irish nationals," and "the rationalisation of the trade union movement in Ireland will be impossible or greatly handicapped if external control of trade unions is allowed to continue." It recommends, however, that Irish members of externally controlled unions should be guaranteed against financial or other loss under any change-over scheme.

A system of labour courts, already a feature of many other countries, is recommended to the attention of the Government, and the committee is of the opinion that the Conditions of Employment Act, 1936, has failed to attain its object. Collective negotiation should remain the principal method for settling industrial disputes.

SPECIAL COUNCILS

Other findings of the Commission are that the presence of non-national firms would be likely to hinder the development of vocational organisation, and that it would be in the public interest for the State to put some limit to the growth of trusts and combines.

Individual functional councils suggested for industry are: a cereal council, a textile and clothing council, a footwear and leather council, a national construction council (for building, etc.), and a pig products council. To these councils, in time, would be transferred many of the functions performed by various Government departments.

In commerce, the Commission recommends the establishment of national councils for each of the well-defined sections of trade, each to keep a register of retailers and wholesalers and submit plans for the removal of redundant retail shops. A national federation of retail and wholesale commerce would secure co-ordination of activity and the perfecting of organisation. A joint commercial board for each well-defined trade could deal with such matters as industrial peace, apprenticeship, planning, protection, inspection and information services.

For export trade, the Commission states the existing basic organisation might be regarded as adequate, while for import trade a joint commercial board for each branch could undertake duties such as those outlined above.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

THE boom in building which will follow the war—a million and a half operatives will be needed for ten years—will create an enormous demand for bricks. The normal capacity of the industry is eight thousand million bricks a year, sufficient to build over half a million houses, but since the war very many brick works have been closed. Stocks which have accumulated amount to nine hundred million bricks. This is fortunate, as even brickworks which have been maintained in reasonable condition will not be able to start producing for about four months after re-opening. It will cost several thousand pounds to get many of the works going again; several have been waterlogged, as fuel has not been allowed for the pumps, and nobody knows what will happen to some of the kilns, fuel for which has been unobtainable. More brickworks in the South of England have been kept in operation than in the North, where some have had to be manned almost entirely by old age pensioners, so that the works may be in a favourable position to resume full production after the war. Investors predict a post-war boom in brick, glass and entertainment companies.

Migrants Praised

Mr. J. G. Harris, Secretary of the Darlington Branch of the National Farmers' Union, to-day praised the work of the Irish migrants, and added that, although the farmers there are experiencing an acute shortage of labour, the Irish workers had not attempted to profit from the situation. Labour, as well as the weather, will be the biggest headache for the farmers for some weeks to come. All farms are shorthanded and cannot manage the harvest without volunteer, part-time and Irish labour. The situation has been made more difficult by the fact that no help from men in the Services will be available this year.

Surrendered Shelters

There has been a fine response to the appeal to the people of provincial cities to surrender their shelters for the benefit of the inhabitants of the flying-bomb areas of the South of England, including the London area. Many people here without shelters would naturally feel much safer with the indoor Morrison or the outdoor Anderson shelter, both of which have a fine record for the number of lives saved. Hundreds of houses have collapsed in varying degree on Morrison shelters without injury to the occupants.
